

Vietnam Refreshment training on Occupational Safety and Health (OSH) approach

Again EOSH Trainers show their abilities. Market still needs more development

During a two day Refreshment Training in Hanoi for the ILO certified EOSH, trainers educated by DECP developed more knowledge and skills. 'E' stands for 'Electronic' because this training module is available for entrepreneurs and their employees on the internet. Through shared preparation of presentations and through in depth further study of the chosen issues: 1. Hazardous substances, 2. Accident prevention, 3. Machine safety in the Telecom Business and 4. Risk management. By developing a marketing plan and discussing it, this refreshment training contributed to improve overall comprehension and skills, combined with the knowledge in the mentioned field. Furthermore, the participants developed a new market plan in order to expand the number of paid trainings. This way the experience of the trainers will increase, their performance will improve and this important service for members of VCCI will show continuously improving quality.
